“ I dream about the day we meet again pops I love you so much

“ This made me very sad to learn, looking up his name the other day. Life brings us different eras - in my teen / young adult years, Chris was a good friend. I met Chris Jr, and Chris' eldest daughter when she was a baby - Chris loved his kids and did everything he could to strive for them. We lost touch long ago - I'd wanted to reconnect and reminisce on our fun times: working out, playing basketball, cleaning our cars and cruising around, but he's gone upstairs. Family - my condolences - you know we were blessed to know him. Woodson, I miss you and hope to see you again one day. From Stephen Mehrmann.

“ I don't sleep without crying. Dad I wish you could read this and know what you meant to me. I wish you would call me up and when could talk for an hour about what life could be. You had so much to live for and I wish you know how loved you were. I never knew how much I needed you until you left me. My heart is in agony and idk how I will ever recover. I love you dad please visit me in my dreams, until we meet again.

“ Sir Chris (as I always called you) I cannot believe that I am really having to write this. You were one of a kind! You knew how to make me laugh, and you also knew how to hit the nerve. Right now, this hurts too deeply to try to say much. So I simply say, Thank you...for the friendship and the long list of memories. Thank you for trusting the GOD in me to call whenever you really needed help. I will definitely miss you and giving you the Pastoral eyebrow. Good Night Tall One. -Pastor S. D. Mears-
