Jaime Leigh Dean

Beloved Mother, Sister, Granddaughter

LOWELL—Jaime Leigh Dean, 40, passed away unexpectedly on April 23, 2018 at Lowell General's Saints Campus, following a medical event at her home. She was the mother of Nicole Dean and Taylor Walton.

Jaime was born in Lowell on June 15, 1977, a daughter of the late Barry Dean, Jr. and Mary Ellen (Buote) Dean. She attended school in Skowhegan, Maine. Upon completion of her education, Jaime worked at the New Balance Factory in Skowhegan.

Jaime was a very hard-working, loveable person with a huge personality and a bright smile. She loved to joke around and her laugh was infectious.

Jaime could make you smile from the top of your head down to your toes. Her daughters were her best friends and she was there for them through thick and thin no matter what. They truly were her greatest achievement. Jaime was a sing in the shower, dance in the rain kind of person. Jaime always found the positive during every negative situation. She had friends from coast to coast, everywhere she lived.

Surviving Jaime in addition to her daughters Nicole and Taylor are her sister, Amanda Dojnia; her brother Donny Dean; and her grandparents George and Cookie Buote.
