Luis i cant seem to let go.... we had an incredible bond, a bond only you and I know. We didnt have to talk to know how we felt. Whenever you reached out or I reached out it,seemed to be tbe right moment when we needed each other. You made me a part of your sons life the day you brought him home for me to meet him and i will forever treasure that. You had hopes for me when i lost hope for myself and i did the same for you. Without a doubt you were an amazing man and im glad i got to experience that many times. You wanted me to be there with you when your dad passed away and I was and even after. I saw how your life changed, the visits to you at tbe hospital gad me full of worry. I saw how your dads passing affected you and i was there, i held you, i spoke to you and as u always knrw how to do, you listened. How can I go on without you? I ask myself everyday.... i guess i have to find a way since Heaven gained another Angel. I love you i always will. Ill never forget you, our times together..... Rest easy....you said you would never yell again (inside joke between you n me) you kept your promise, you always did.
